

A group of champion fiddlers at the fiddlers' convention in Atlanta, Ga. "Uncle Billy" Porterdale, eighty-three years old, is seated in the center. "Ol' Zip Coon" is the favorite tune of these experts of the bow.

© Shannon Mathewson

Youthful visitors on the battleship New York endeavor to find out what makes the gun go off. The great fighting ship is now anchored in the Hudson river off Riverside Drive.

© Underwood & Underwood

A British tank captured by Huns during the war going into action against the Spartacides in a Berlin street. When the tank was first captured it was used in a "victory" parade in Berlin.

© Underwood & Underwood

Pages of the recent convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Washington. Photograph taken in front of Continental Memorial Hall.

© Bachrach

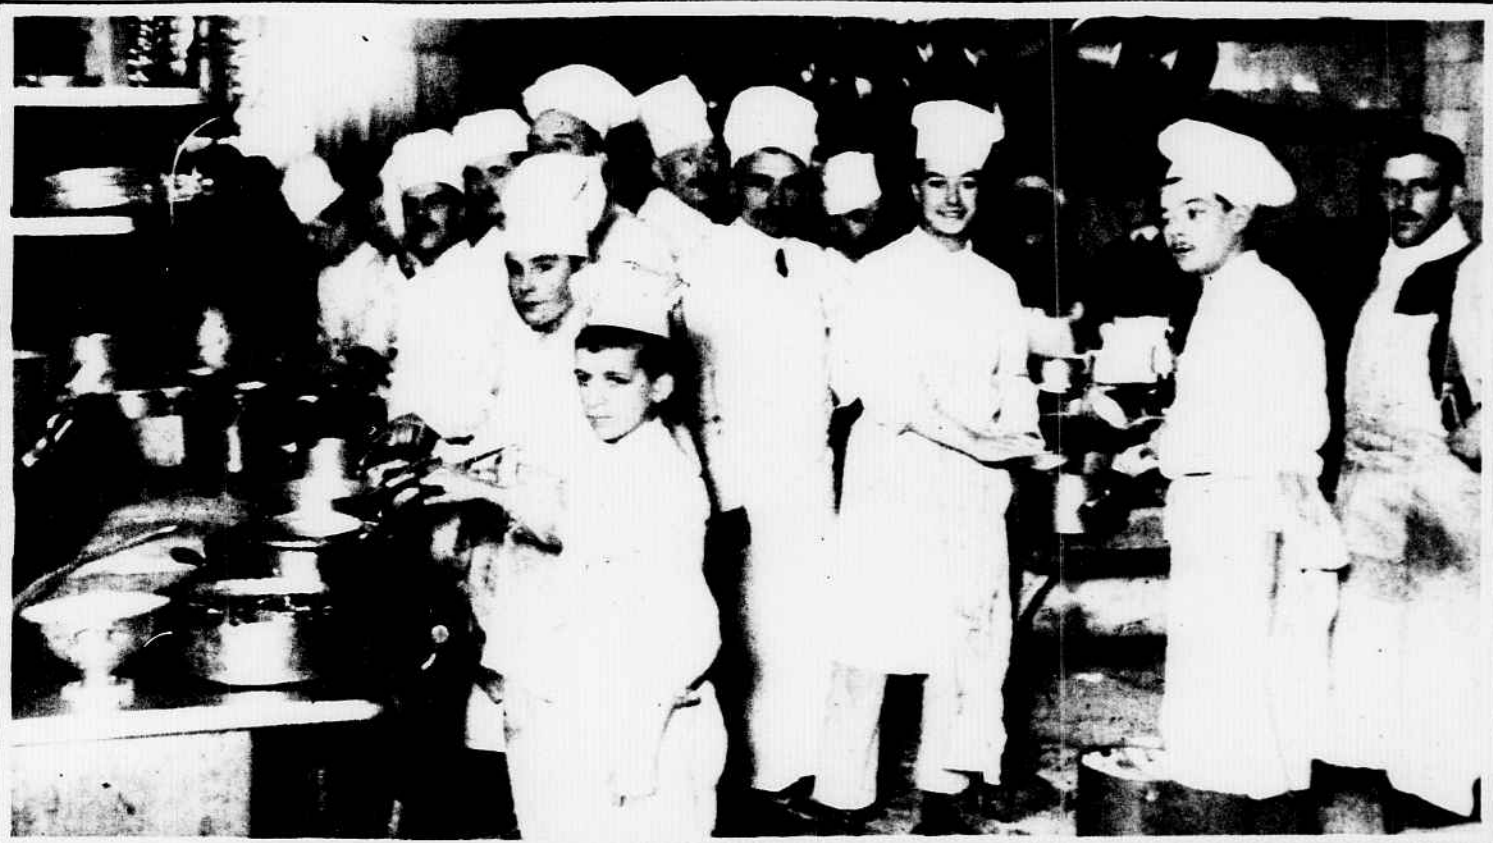

Miss Louise Carolyn Morgan of Columbus, Miss., special page of Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, president general of the D. A. R.

© Bachrach

Miss Pauline Henkel, thirteen years of age, of Albany, N. Y., who is asking a charter for the Junior United States Auxiliary, an organization of children formed to further national interests. Miss Henkel's sale of fourth liberty bonds amounted to $1,032.150.

© Keystone View Co.

French cooks who feed peace conference delegates at the Hotel Majestic in Paris. The photograph shows a crowded kitchen and a cook for almost every saucepan.

© London Mail. From Paul Thompson